MCGILL
A Nation
In His Hand

MAHEWA VILLAGE, U. P., India—At first it is a somewhat startling thought, but once in the mind it grows and stays there... the thought being that the Prime Minister of India, Jawaharlal Nehru, is the most important figure in what we call the free, or democratic world.

With all due regard and affection for the esteemed personalities of Winston Churchill, Harry S. Truman, and the various prime ministers of other nations in the democratic group, not one is so irreplaceable as this grave and troubled Indian, whose burden is greater than that carried by any of the patient bullocks which make up the symbol of his political party.

No other man literally holds a country together. Any other nation would go on about as now without their present leader. But India would not. It is held together by this one man. Without him it would fly apart.

The Communists know it. They smile and say:

"If our time does not come before, it will come when Nehru dies."

Paradox

Nehru is an astonishing man. None can deny he believes in the democratic process. If he did not he would not now be thrusting his country into what is the most fabulous, fantastic and almost incredible election in the history of all the world. Since 85 per cent of his people are in villages where the memory of Gandhi enables the Congress party to enjoy the loyalty of a tremendous majority, and since Nehru commands a wide following in the cities, he could have avoided any election at all. But he has opened it to every adult with a sane mind and he has seen to it that every party will have a symbol so the millions of illiterates will be able to cast their ballots. At least 170,000,000 are expected to vote, out of 175,000,000 eligible. There is a stirring among those who never even heard of a ballot until a few months ago, and whose idea of an election even now is nil. All many millions know is that they must put a paper in a box marked with a symbol of some organization which has appealed most to them. For most of them this means Gandhi—Nehru, who has inherited Gandhi's party.

Nehru himself is a paradox. He was born into a wealthy, long-established family enjoying the status of nobility. His father was a wealthy, successful barrister enjoying a huge practice. Yet, Nehru was early caught up by the dream of freedom and became a follower of Gandhi. His father also joined the queer little man who was to shake all India and give the whole world a slight tremor. The father abandoned his practice, refusing to appear in British courts, and reduced himself to near poverty. Father and son fought for Gandhi.

Jails

Nehru spent altogether about seven years in British jails, following Gandhi's program of civil disobedience and of saying, when arrested and tried, "Yes, I am guilty. Put me in jail." These Indians began to wear jail sentences as designations of honor, and even Nehru's daughters attained several of these honorary degrees.

He read much, and brooded greatly, in these years of jail and the acid of them ate into him. It reveals itself now and then, but the wonder is he is so balanced a man—as he is.

His enemies say of him that he refuses to face the fact of poverty and need. The Communists spread the line that he is owned by business. (This is extremely ironical in America where Nehru is accused of being pro-Communist.) The local Communists hate him and malign him. They know.

Nehru is saying in his campaign speeches that now, having attained freedom, that freedom from want and hunger, from low wages and bad living conditions are the next goals. This is true. And this is why he has steered a neutral course, knowing full well that he cannot do too toward rearmament—and is indeed doing a dangerous lot now—without losing everything.

Those in his own party, who love him most, say quite frankly that if India is not advanced enough within the next four years of Nehru's administration—he is sure to be re-elected as prime minister by a victory of his party—that the job will not be done at all. And India will be lost.

They are four important years. And Nehru emerges from the cloudy, confused picture as the most important man in the free world—and the only one who is literally irreplaceable.

Steel Row
Is Handed
To Truman

By ROBERT E. LEE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(UP)—Federal mediators Friday tossed the crucial steel wage deadlock to President Truman as the U. S. Steel Corp. offered to drop its request for price increases if the CIO Steelworkers will abandon their demand for an 18½ cent hourly pay boost.

A union spokesman promptly rejected the offer as "not in good faith." He said the steel industry's bid for higher prices already has been turned down by the government, while the steelworkers are legally entitled to a wage increase.

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the nation's biggest steel firm, issued a statement Friday night calling for a "break" on the "recurring series of spirals of higher wages and higher prices."

He said both his company and the union are "entitled" to higher prices and wages, but asserted that any increase in steel wages would wreck the government's wage stabilization program.

Fairless' statement came after Federal Mediation Chief Cyrus S. Cheng came to the "reluctant conclusion" that further talks between the powerful steel union and 10 leading steel companies would be "fruitless."

Cheng, who was trying desperately to head off an almost certain steel strike New Year's Day, said industry negotiators made no offer in answer to the union's demands for wage hikes and a long list of other contract benefits.

CIO President Philip Murray, who also heads the steel union, repeatedly has said that talks will not work without a contract and that a walkout is "inevitable" unless a new agreement is signed by New Year's Day.

Mr. Truman was expected to take early action to send the stalled case to the Wage Stabilization Board for recommended terms of settlement. The President may eventually be forced to use the Taft-Hartley law's emergency provisions to stop the strike.

Fairless said a steel strike would be "disastrous" to national defense and added:

"I believe there should be no wage or price increase at this time."

A high price stabilization official said it "probable" the steel industry would make a higher profit if it had neither a wage nor price increase.

Jerry never smiles. Jerry is a lost little boy who is fading farther and farther into a world of his own.

The psychologist who tested him recently for the Family Service Society says Jerry has a good mind—but that insecurity and unhappiness at home are making him shrink dangerously from reality.

With help now and with careful professional guidance, Jerry may be turned back from the tragic road he is taking and become a normal, happy little boy again.

When this blank-eyed youngster was only two, his mother was sent to prison. His father has been able to support Jerry and the boy's two sisters, but day-time care of the children has been haphazard—a succession of relatives, neighbors, and baby-sitters.

One baby-sitter, enraged by Jerry's crying, beat him with a buckled belt until he was unconscious. Another laughed the innocent

The explosion occurred in the New Orient mine between here and Benton.

It was reported that 300 men were working on the night shift at the time of the explosion. It was also reported, but there was no confirmation, that a fire was still burning in the mine.

PIT BELCHES SMOKE

Witnesses said that smoke could be seen coming from the mine pit.

The witnesses also said that some men were coming to the surface from the mine.

Sheriff Paul Rice ordered police here to open the gymnasium at a nearby school to aid any victims.

The mine is owned by the Chicago, Wilmington and Franklin Coal Co.

West Frankfort, a city of 12,000 population, is about 50 miles southeast of St. Louis, Mo., and 200 south of Chicago.

The casualty report came from Lt. Danville G. Willis who headed a detail of state police at the scene of the disaster. The report was radioed back to division police headquarters at Duquoin, Ill.

He said the explosion occurred at mine No. 2 of the Chicago, Wilmington and Franklin Coal Co., identified as the "New Orient."

IN NEW SHAFT

At Springfield authorities said that Governor Adlai E. Stevenson was notified and exclaimed "oh, my God" and ordered his staff to make arrangements to fly to the scene in the morning.

Superintendent of state police Tom O'Donnell at Springfield said he was told the explosion was "at the bottom of a new shaft."

W. W. Lamont, director of the West Frankfort Hospital said that three "very badly injured" men have been brought to the hospital and that he expected "many more."

He said that the hospital had called in extra personnel and had readied stocks of medicines and blood plasma.

Lamont said that the high school gymnasium has been set up as a morgue.

EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Dec. 22 (Saturday).—Allied air and artillery lashed furiously into a heavy enemy buildup attempt in Korea Saturday, but the Reds untidied their attempt to push all possible men and supplies into Korea ahead of a potential armistice.

Enemy vehicles rolled south on all available roads, in an apparent Red attempt to get the maximum force into the battle area before any armistice "freeze" on troop-equipment buildups.

The Communist plan became apparent Thursday night when 2,200 enemy vehicles were sighted and 4,000 enemy soldiers were reported. This was an increase of more than 1,000 over the sightings of the past several months.

As the Red trucks rumbled over the narrow Korean roads by night, the Far East Air Force swung at them with a series of incendiary attacks. This was an increase of more than 1,000 over the sightings of the past several months.

But, despite the bombs, napalm and strafing fire, the Reds are still rolling. Thursday night only 11 of some 2,200 vehicles were claimed as "destroyed" by Fifth Air Force fliers.

CHANGE OF HEART?
Judge Thomas F. Murphy

Murphy Out
Of Cleanup,
Reports Say

By W. H. LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—Judge Thomas F. Murphy of New York was reported Friday night to have reconsidered and withdrawn his agreement to serve on President Truman's special commission to investigate and expose wrongdoers in government.

There was no confirmation of this report from the White House which, since last Saturday, has maintained the strictest silence on all developments relating to Mr. Truman's press conference pledge of continued drastic action by the executive to remove faithless federal employees from office.

Judge Murphy was said to have changed his mind about serving upon the anti-corruption inquiry as a result of protests from his colleagues on the federal bench.

The White House never had confirmed widely-published reports of Judge Murphy's selection, but it did publicize, after the fact, his secret conference last Saturday morning with the President, which Mr. Truman described as "profitable."

There had been little doubt until Friday that Judge Murphy would take part in the investigation of wrongdoers in government and in the anti-corruption inquiry.

It was confirmed by subsequent reports from reliable sources in New York that he already was in the process of picking the special staff to serve with him.

Despite the fact that the President and his staff never had announced Judge Murphy's selection, the continuing, undenied newspaper publicity for more than a week had resulted in widespread public acceptance that he would play a major role in the scandal inquiry.

It seemed that subsequent developments, therefore, the report of Judge Murphy's reconsideration and refusal to serve on the corruption inquiry commission would come as something of a blow to the administration, because of the widespread public acceptance and approval of his selection.

War Prisoner Is Her 1st Husband

The father of Atlanta's bride who may have two soldier husbands Friday night gave new hope to the possibility that her first husband was alive in Korea.

The father, J. L. Laseter of Cullman, Ala., said he was certain that Pfc. Walter B. Dixon, RA1728634, listed by the Communists as a prisoner of war, was the same man who married his daughter, Agnes Laseter, now Mrs. Agnes Sasser, in April, 1950.

Confirming Army records released Friday in Washington which showed Dixon's next of kin to be Mrs. Lorean G. Storey, 304 Moore St., Sikeston, Mo., Laseter identified Mrs. Storey as Dixon's sister. Laseter also checked the serial number listed on a letter received from his daughter's husband and said they were the same.

Reds Refuse
Compromise
On Armistice*'Christmas Truce'*Feared Blasted

TOKYO, Dec. 22—(UP)—The Communists stubbornly refused Saturday to compromise on crucial armistice issues, possibly blasting hopes of a "Christmas truce" in Korea.

With only five days left before the tentative truce deadline Dec. 27, Allied negotiators found the Reds standing firm on key problems of supervising any truce despite the sweeping concessions offered Friday by the Allies.

TALKS RESUMED
War prisoner talks were resumed at 11 a. m. Saturday despite Allied charges that the Communist list of Allied prisoners is "wholly unbelievable" and full of "wide discrepancies."

While the prisoner subcommittee conferred, the U. S. Air Force colonels who offered Friday to surrender to the Reds the strategic Allied-held islands north of the 38th parallel met again to press for comparable Red concessions.

The staff meeting broke up after an hour and a half of "no progress." The generals forming the subcommittee on truce supervision will meet later Saturday to hear the report of the staff officers' failure to achieve any significant agreement.

DEADLOCKED

The truce-supervision talks have been deadlocked for weeks on the Communists' adamant refusal to stop building airfields in Red Korea, if a truce is arranged, to permit free movement of truce-inspection teams in Communist-held territory, and to allow troop rotation and replacement of supplies.

The Communists hinted Friday they were willing to meet the Allies halfway—to give ground on some of their cherished demands in return for the surrender of the northern islands.

No concessions materialized Saturday, however. The staff officers met at 10 a. m. and adjourned at 11:30 a. m. "without further progress."

In many ways, success of the truce-supervision talks was pivotal to the question of war and peace.

But it was around the fate of

One Approved

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—The government authorized a price increase of almost 5 per cent for Hudson motor cars Friday. It was the first of a series of ceiling increases expected to be granted the automotive industry under the Capehart amendment to the new economic controls law.

General Motors requested a boost in wholesale ceiling prices on its five makes of passenger automobiles, and Ford, Studebaker and Kaiser-Frazer have filed similar petitions.

The hike approved by the Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) for Hudson was 4.891 per cent on wholesale f. o. b. prices at the factory. It was the amount Hudson had requested.

It was estimated that the increases in Hudson ceilings would range from $90 on their lowest priced car to $145 on the Hornet (seven A) convertible rougham, the highest priced Hudson.

OPS said the increase would be approximately the same at retail. Hudson hasn't stated yet, OPS said, when or whether it will actually increase prices up to the new ceilings.

Move Certain To Stir Cry
For Reprisals

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 21—(UP)—Four American crewmen of a C-47 transport forced down in Hungary by Russian fighter planes last month will be tried by a Hungarian court, the government announced Friday night.

(Hungary's announced intention to try the airmen shocked U. S. officials who insist the fliers innocently crossed the Hungarian border while on a routine flight from Germany to Yugoslavia.)

(State department officials were reluctant to comment before receiving an official report on the Hungarian decision. But the action was certain to stir up a storm in Congress and lead to demands for stiff reprisals.)

The announcement charged that the plane deliberately violated the Hungarian frontier "with the criminal intention of dropping spies and diversionists" in this country.

However, it did not say what the precise charge is against the Americans, nor did it indicate when the trial would begin.

Deputy Foreign Minister Andor Berei summoned U. S. Charge D'Affaires George Abbott to the foreign ministry to hand him the note serving notice of the government's intentions. A short time later the foreign ministry made public the text.

The note identified the Americans as Captain Henderson, Captain Swift, Aircraft Mechanic Duff and Radio Operator James Albert Allan.

(They are Capt. John J. Swift of Glens Falls, N. Y.; Capt. Dave H. Henderson of Shawnee, Okla.; Sgt. James A. Elam of Kingsland, Ark.; and Sgt. Jess A. Duff of Spokane, Wash.)

The plane disappeared Nov. 19 while flying from Munich, Germany, to Belgrade, Yugoslavia. Just two weeks later the Moscow radio reported that Soviet air force planes had forced it to land in Hungary, and the four crewmen were turned over to Hungarian authorities.

(The U. S. embassy reported Nov. 20 that the C-47 was carrying supplies from Munich to the Belgrade embassy, and had vanished the day before after reporting.

Tentative County Budget Draws Vigorous Protest

A tentative 1952 Fulton County budget, which is $900,000 less than the budget for 1951, was submitted to county commissioners Friday and immediately brought protests from both business and political leaders here.

The estimate, submitted in summary form by county auditors and approved for recommendation by County Manager A. E. Fuller, totaled $12,147,105.75. Of that $9,453,866 was earmarked for general county purposes.

Indications that this figure will be increased and that Fulton County taxes will be the same, 15 mills—or higher than last year—followed the announcement of the budget figure.

REALTORS' PROTEST

And, at the same time, protests came from the Atlanta Real Estate Board which said: "The Board is unhappy to see taxes increased for any reason." State and city officials said they could not "conceive how the county budget could be approximately the same as last year."

County Commissioner Jack Towns estimated the 1952 budget, if approved, would call for a 15-mill levy. But, he said, "additions likely will be made" before it becomes final.

Mayor Hartsfield declared that under the Plan of Improvement, which goes into effect Jan. 1, transferring many services from the county to the city, the county "should have effected a saving of at least $3,000,000."

Italy Free To Rearm, Ten Nations Agree

Early Buildup Not Expected;
Soviet Bloc Unheard From

By ARNALDO CORTESI

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

ROME, Dec. 21—The government considers that a revision of the Italian Treaty is an accomplished fact as of Friday, the Foreign Ministry announced. This step followed favorable replies from 10 nations (Greece, New Zealand, Nationalist China, France, Britain, Holland, United States, Belgium, South Africa and Brazil in that order) to a note that the Italian government addressed Dec. 8 to the 22 Allied and associated powers asking to be relieved of the restrictions that the peace treaty laid upon Italian sovereignty.

Several other favorable replies are understood to be on the way. Nothing has been heard however from Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Albania, which are known to be against treaty revision, and from Yugoslavia and Ethiopia, which have hitherto regarded it with scant enthusiasm.

Apart from its moral implications, the principal practical significance of Friday's declaration is that Italy no longer considers herself bound by articles 46 to 70 of the peace treaty, which limited her military establishment and her right to rearm.

It is thought unlikely that Italy will avail herself of cancellation of the treaty restrictions to increase the numerical strength of her army in the immediate future. She is in fact still a long way from organizing enough combat ready divisions to absorb the whole of the 185,000 men that the treaty allowed her.

Financial stringencies and the high cost of naval construction debar Italy from any notable increase of her naval strength, unless the United States is willing to pursue the precedent set earlier this month and donate destroyers and gunboats to her. The peace treaty limited the Italian navy to two ancient battleships and 67,500 tons of other warcraft.

Whereas previously Italy could add ships to her navy only as replacements, she will in the future be able to accept gifts from America without scrapping an equal tonnage of older craft.

In the air a great increase in Italian strength will be possible. The treaty allowed Italy no bombers and only 350 aircraft for all purposes. Defense Minister Rinaldo Ossola stated in the Senate last month that Italy was planning an air force of 3,000 planes.

Explaining to the assembly the U. S. abstention on the scale of assessments, John M. Vorys said it was well known that the United States had spent "billions" of dollars to uphold the charter principles which the UN was not in a position to implement.

U. S. Nixes Plaintiff 2 Spies 'Chuted Into Hungary

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—The United States government has categorically rejected Romanian charges of espionage by parachute two "diversionist spies" into Romanian territory, according to the State department Friday. A note to this effect has been handed to the authorities in Bucharest by James W. Gantebain, U. S. charge d'affaires.

The men in question, according to Romanian charges, were named as Wilhelm Spender and Constantin Saplacan. The Romanian government alleged that they were trained in sabotage and espionage at a U. S. school conducted in Italy, and that they had been dropped from a U. S. airplane which took off from Greece.

"The government of the United States cannot avoid the conclusion," the note said, "that this fantastic incident has been conjured up by the Romanian government in order to furnish some basis for an overall propaganda campaign directed against the United States."

DEFENSE A LITTLE FOXY

Saw Tallu Puff Reefers, Ex-Confidante Tells Court

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(UP)—Tallulah Bankhead's former maid-secretary testified Friday she once saw the actress smoke marijuana in Evansville, Ind., and that she had paid for cocaine delivered to the star's dressing room in a New York theater.

Mrs. Evelyn Cronin, 59, ex-vaudeville dancer who served Miss Bankhead in numerous capacities, was on the witness stand for the second consecutive day in her trial on charges of stealing $4,284.60 by raising the amounts on checks signed by the fiery actress.

Mrs. Cronin has admitted raising the checks, but contended that she used the money to buy things for Miss Bankhead who, she said, lived in an expensive and unusual manner.

Defense Attorney Fred G. Moritt asked Mrs. Cronin if, in addition to buying such things as gloves and stockings, she also had paid for marijuana at Miss Bankhead's "express direction."

"Yes," she answered.

Mrs. Cronin then identified a check dated Jan. 28, 1950, as one she had raised.

She continued that Miss Bankhead met a waiter in Evansville who "told her there was a place..." She said that she and her adopted daughter, Josie, accompanied the actress, Bill Langford, who played with Miss Bankhead in "Private Lives," and two other persons to a "dready and dark" Evansville home where they were served drinks and spareribs.

"Then they brought out marijuana cigarettes," Mrs. Cronin said, and each of the party except Josie, a valet and herself puffed on them.

"They took deep breaths of it," she testified.

Mrs. Cronin testified that Dickie Wells, who she said was from Harlem and operated a downtown cabaret, brought cocaine to Miss Bankhead's dressing room in the Plymouth Theater sometime between Oct. 4, 1948, and May 7, 1949.

Agriculture Department Corruption Probe Hinted

MONTPELIER, Vt., Dec. 21—(UP)—A full-scale investigation of reports of corruption in the Department of Agriculture is being weighed by the Senate agriculture committee, Senator Aiken (Rep., Vt.) disclosed Friday.

The ranking minority member of the committee said an investigation would be launched if a report expected next month from the committee's staff verified rumors of favoritism, unethical conduct and illegal activities in the department.

"We'll go as high as necessary in the department if we decide a full investigation is warranted," Aiken said.

He said there was a "probability" that illegal acts had been made by Agriculture department officials and employees, but added:

"You can be corrupt without being illegal."

Aiken said the preliminary staff investigation had covered at least these subjects:

1. The losses of the peanut price support program which he said had received little publicity compared with the potato price support program because "potatoes is a Republican crop and peanuts is a Democratic crop."

2. Illegal acceptance of money by Agriculture department employees from concerns affected by department policies.

3. The alleged speculation in oil on government-controlled lands by officials of a Missouri bank on information said to have been supplied by staff members of the department's Farm Credit Administration.

4. The leasing of government-owned buildings in the Midwest, largely in Missouri, by Democrats who then allegedly rented the structures at large profits to the department's Commodity Credit Corporation for grain storage.

Other members of the syndicate are the Allegheny Corp., American Securities Corp., Charles F. Noyes Co., Inc., Arnold Grant of New York and Col. Henry Crown of Chicago.

Josephine Baker Sues Winchell Following Stork Club Incident

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP)—Josephine Baker, Negro entertainer, filed a $400,000 damage suit Friday against Columnist Walter Winchell, the Hearst Corp. and King Features.

She charged that Winchell "maliciously, wantonly and recklessly printed and published" items attacking her on Oct. 25 and six other occasions.

The suit was filed in federal court as an aftermath of a visit by Miss Baker, American-born French citizen, to the Stork Club on Oct. 16.

She said in a brief filed by Attorney Arthur Garfield Hays that she was treated discourteously at the club "and made complaint about her treatment both to the club and publicly."

Miss Baker said Winchell was present during the Stork Club incident and that he resented publicity concerning his presence. Then, she said, he "embarked upon a public campaign to vilify, libel and damage plaintiff in her reputation and professional standing in the community."

Rate Boost Plea Pushed By Railroads

Atlantan on Group
Backing Request

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—The railroads of the nation Friday filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission advance copies of evidence to be presented in support of their request for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates at hearings to open next Jan. 14.

In connection with the testimony, a statement was released by John J. Fitzpatrick of New York City, chairman of the Traffic Executive Association, Eastern Railroads; J. G. Kerr of Atlanta, chairman of the executive committee, Southern Freight Association; and W. H. Dana of Chicago, chairman of the executive committee, Western Traffic Association.

The 15 per cent rate railroads are now asking is what they asked last March. In August the ICC authorized them to boost rates nine per cent in the east and west and six per cent in the country, averaging 6.6 per cent for the country as a whole.

The railroad witnesses will tell the ICC that, while operating revenues for 1951 will be the greatest ever recorded, operating expenses combined with taxes, will also be at record levels.

The net result, according to the prepared statements, will be a decrease in net railway operating income of $973,000,000 in 1950 to $903,000,000 in 1951. They also said there will be a drop in the rate of return on net investment from 3.96 per cent in 1950 to 3.54 per cent in 1951. Neither of those rates of return can be regarded as adequate, the railroad officials argue, contending that the nation's railroads must have a return of six per cent on the net investment.

Even if the rates and changes now in effect as a result of the increase which the ICC granted in August had been in effect for the entire year they would still have less railroad earnings than the rails had in 1950, according to the statements. On that basis the net railway operating income for Class I railroads would amount to $897,000,000 for 1952, with a rate of return of 3.42 per cent, according to the estimates of railroad officials.

Three deputies to the Russian high commissioner have left recently and have been replaced. The high commissioner himself, Lt. Gen. V. P. Sviridov, is reported "on vacation."

Russian troops occupy one-fourth of Austria. Britain, France and the United States occupy the rest of the country. Austria is the only place in the world where the big four meet regularly to discuss common problems.

The Russians have stalled and prevented the signing of a treaty that would end the occupation of Austria. They have forced the West to keep many controls, like censorship, over Austria.

"But since the shake-up first began a few weeks ago," said one high Western official, "they have suddenly become most friendly, polite and co-operative."

According to Western officials, the following changes have occurred:

M. E. Koptelov, Russian minister to the Austrian government and political adviser to the high commissioner, has been replaced by a newly arrived Moscow official named Kudryassiev.

Many television sets now have "printed circuits" in which wires and other devices are pressed into insulating material.

Thirty-nine countries voted in the political and security committee against the Russian resolution and Moscow was able to muster only the usual five votes of the Soviet bloc. Eleven countries abstained and the other five members of the United Nations had apparently taken off a bit early on the Christmas recess.

There was one Latin American country—Guatemala—that abstained on the roll call, winding up one of the sharpest debates of the assembly session. The others who would not vote yes or no were the Arab and Asian countries: Afghanistan, Burma, Egypt, India, Indonesia, Iran, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia and Yemen. The five countries who were absent were Bolivia, El Salvador, Ethiopia, Panama and South Africa.

Sometime after New Year's Day the case will go before the plenary assembly, which has the same membership as the political and security committee. The Russians are expected to demand another vote on their already rejected resolution and the United States hopes to pick up a few more votes against it from the absentees, or perhaps the abstainers.

The Russian charges and the Soviet resolution were directed against the United States Mutual Security Act, signed Oct. 10, which provides for military and economic aid to the United States' allies. The specific target of the Soviet attack was a provision in the act authorizing the expenditure of $100,000,000 to help persons "residing in" the Soviet Union and other Communist nations or refugees from those countries who want to form armed units to support the North Atlantic forces.

TIMELY "VACATION"
Red General Sviridov

Reds Shuffle Top Echelon In Austria

By RICHARD O'REGAN

VIENNA, Dec. 21—(AP)—A big shake-up in the Soviet occupation command in Austria was reported Friday.

"Western Allied occupation officials speculated that the shake-up heralds a more conciliatory Kremlin policy in four-power relations in this tiny land."

Three deputies to the Russian high commissioner have left recently and have been replaced. The high commissioner himself, Lt. Gen. V. P. Sviridov, is reported "on vacation."

Russian troops occupy one-fourth of Austria. Britain, France and the United States occupy the rest of the country. Austria is the only place in the world where the big four meet regularly to discuss common problems.

The Russians have stalled and prevented the signing of a treaty that would end the occupation of Austria. They have forced the West to keep many controls, like censorship, over Austria.

"But since the shake-up first began a few weeks ago," said one high Western official, "they have suddenly become most friendly, polite and co-operative."

According to Western officials, the following changes have occurred:

M. E. Koptelov, Russian minister to the Austrian government and political adviser to the high commissioner, has been replaced by a newly arrived Moscow official named Kudryassiev.

Many television sets now have "printed circuits" in which wires and other devices are pressed into insulating material.

Thirty-nine countries voted in the political and security committee against the Russian resolution and Moscow was able to muster only the usual five votes of the Soviet bloc. Eleven countries abstained and the other five members of the United Nations had apparently taken off a bit early on the Christmas recess.

De Gaulle Launches European Army Plan

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

PARIS, Dec. 20—Gen. Charles De Gaulle Friday announced that he has his own plan for a European confederation and the organization of its confederal military forces which will shortly be submitted to the French National Assembly in a formal bill.

In that confederation each nation, including Germany, he said, would have equal rights and would contribute its force under precise conditions and obligations, so that none would have hegemony over the others.

Surrounded by his principal followers, he told some 300 members of the French and foreign press Friday that without the formation of such a confederation in advance, the Schuman Plan for merging Europe's coal and steel, which has just been ratified by the assembly, and the European army project, on which the foreign ministers of six countries are to meet next week, are "caricatures" and "dangerous" for France, for Europe and even for the future of the North Atlantic community.

General De Gaulle said that United States pressure on these questions ought to be more cautious and restrained. He said the United States ought to realize what the Europeans have been through, and also warned that if the French overseas union were shaken it would impair the chances of European union.

About his plan for European confederation, De Gaulle said it would be "set down in black and white" in all details in a bill binding together the whole establishment of the European confederation and the confederal forces of Europe in the way they should be organized from the viewpoint of a common command.

U. S. Test Pilot Dies in Blast Of Jet Bomber

CENTREVILLE, Md., Dec. 21—(AP)—Two U. S. Air Force pilots dived the tail off a British Canberra jet bomber Friday and one of the pilots was killed when the plane exploded in the air.

Maj. Harry M. Lester of Baltimore, piloting the sleek night intruder on a test flight, took to his parachute and was not seriously hurt. He had head and eye injuries.

His companion's chute failed to open, Maryland state police reported, but they could not immediately find the body. The second pilot's name was withheld.

The plane was one of the two Canberras which flew the Atlantic in record time this year.

James B. Sward, who drove Major Lester to a hospital at nearby Eastern, Md., said the flier told him the plane's tail assembly came off in a test dive.

Three Killed In Pre-Yule Tragedies

Boy Accidentally
Shoots His Chum

Three persons were killed Friday, including a 12-year-old DeKalb County schoolboy, and four others injured in pre-holiday tragedies in the Atlanta area, police said.

Joseph Donald, 12, of Tucker, was instantly killed at noon by a 22-caliber rifle accidentally discharged by a playmate while on an outing to search for a Christmas tree, police said.

At Marietta, Clifford Neal Moss, 36, of Rt. 6, Marietta, was killed instantly about 8 a. m. as he became entangled in high voltage wires when he stopped to investigate a motor accident, Cobb County police said.

His 34-year-old wife and five-year-old son, Tony, were severely burned while attempting to rescue the husband. They were listed in "satisfactory condition" at Keneston Hospital in Marietta with third degree burns about the body.

Rosa Oliver, Negro, of Niskey Lake Rd., near Campbellton Rd., was burned about the head while rescuing her 13-month-old daughter, Patricia Oliver, from a flaming room shortly after noon. The child was admitted to Grady Hospital with third degree burns. The mother was treated and dismissed.

A 15-year-old Pickens County boy was killed accidentally while hunting near Jasper.

Philip Tripp, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tripp of Jasper, was found dead by a companion. The boy apparently was sitting on a log when his gun discharged accidentally in his face.

A coroner's inquest ruled death was accidental.

Funeral arrangements will be announced.

Other survivors include a brother, Jeff Howard Tripp; a sister, Jane Tripp, both of Jasper; several aunts and uncles.

In the DeKalb tragedy, Joseph Donald, his 14-year-old brother, Gerald, Donald, and playmates, Charles Spangler, 11, and Wendell and Joe Sharpton, were searching for a Christmas tree along the Lawrenceville highway, near Tucker.

DeKalb Police Chief Hoyt Sutton said the Spangler boy was attempting to load a 22-caliber rifle which he received as a birthday present. Somehow the rifle discharged, Sutton said, and the bullet struck Joseph Donald in the chest.

Judge Oscar Mitchell, acting coroner in the absence of Coroner S. D. Warren, who is ill, said no inquest would be necessary since there were witnesses to the death.

The Atlanta AMVETS immediately began a movement to have Cpl. Earl F. Donald, a brother of the victim, who is in the Army in Japan, flown here for the funeral. Congressman James Davis also was aiding in the movement.

Funeral arrangements for the Donald boy will be announced by A. S. Turner & Son.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Donald Sr.; three brothers, H. H. Jr., Julian V., all of Tucker, and Cpl. Earl F. Donald, stationed in Japan; six sisters, Mrs. Jessie Cruce of Swainsboro; Mrs. James Leach of West Palm Beach, Fla.; Miss Shirley C. Donald of Atlanta; Flora C. Patricia I., and Sandra D. Donald of Tucker.

Cobb County officers said Moss, an employee of Jimmy's Truck Stop, near Marietta, his wife and young son, stopped to investigate an overturned car on Stilesboro Rd., two miles north of Marietta.

Moss evidently became entangled in high voltage wires dangling from a broken utility pole near the overturned car, police said. His wife was severely burned when she rushed over to him, police said, and the five-year-old son evidently grabbed his mother.

The car which Moss stopped to inquire about was left there by an electrician, who had gone to investigate the broken utility pole, police related.

Increase than those that would be permissible under existing law.

The so-called Capehart amendment to the economic controls law—which the government warned a week ago would govern any price increase—permits firms to pass on higher costs only up to last July.

However, Arthur J. Goldberg, general counsel of the CIO and of the steel union, said Fairless failed to state that his own company and other steelmakers "have been turned down" on price hikes because "steel profits are so great."

"The steel companies at this late date want the public to believe that the industry is now, and has been, leading the fight against inflation," Goldberg said in a National Broadcasting Company speech.

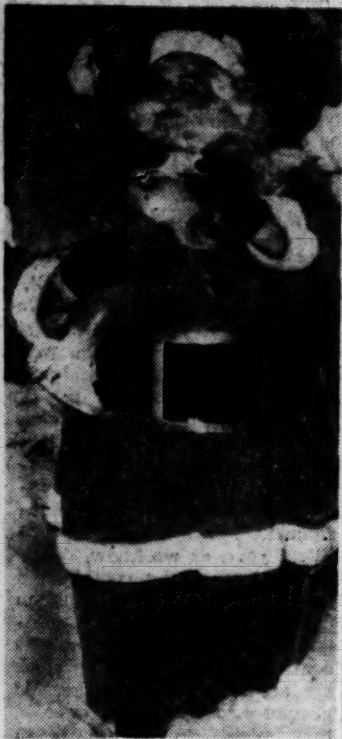

"Nothing is further from the truth," he declared.

UN war prisoners that the keenest interest revolved as the Allied delegates prepared to sit down with the Reds at Panmunjom again and work on the problem.

The Allies had cleared the way for the resumption with a one-two punch. General Ridgway addressed a personal appeal to the Communist high command to permit Red Cross inspection of the Red prison camps. Rear Adm. R. E. Libby of the armistice team sent the Red sub-committee a sternly worded note.

The note served notice "that the list of 11,559 prisoners—3,198 of them, Americans—received from the Communists did not tally with other reports. It cited chapter and verse.

And it wound up with a demand for a "complete, proper and satisfactory explanation as to the UN personnel noted and the many thousands of ROK (South Korean) army personnel reported by you as prisoners of war."

ing it was fired on by Hungarian border guards.)

Friday night's note said the plane was a "military transport aircraft equipped with military operational maps, radio transmitters, parachutes, etc." violating Hungarian territory with premeditated intention to drop spies and diversions.

The official Soviet Tass News Agency had reported earlier, in disclosing that the plane had been forced down in Hungary, that it had a portable field radio in "soft packing and with a device for dropping," and six parachutes not for the crew but for "some other purposes," as well as "several packs with 20 warm blankets ready to be dropped down from the plane."

(U. S. Air Force spokesmen have explained that the equipment carried by the C-47 was only standard fixtures and the safety of the crew normally carried in flights during the winter over rugged terrain such as lies between Munich and Belgrade.)

A Million Dead Men Shout, 'Beware!'

This day, Dec. 22, will be the shortest of the year for all of us. But for many it will be not only the shortest, but also it will be the last. They will be the victims of fatal accidents on the streets and highways of the nation.

Among these unfortunate people will be "Victim X," the millionth traffic fatality since the automobile took its first life in 1899. According to the National Safety Council estimate, "Victim X" will die around noon today, shortly after the advent of winter.

The millionth victim could be a mother on the way to finish her Christmas shopping; it could be a child running across the street to meet the deliveryman with a package.

It could be you, the Safety Council warns ominously.

Marking noon on Dec. 22 as the approximate time of the millionth death is not guesswork. The council estimate is based on a study of the accident figures for the last several years. Months ago, the date was set as Dec. 21 and publicized with the dim hope that the awful significance of the statistics would delay the day.

But the slowdown in death on the road has been so slight that "M-Day," the time of that millionth death, was changed only a day. As of late Thursday, the national toll was 999,780, 220 persons short of a million since a New York financier was killed when he stepped from a street car into the path of a car 51 years, three months and eight days ago.

It has taken more than three times as long, 176 years, for war to take a million American lives. And that figure includes deaths from all causes—killed in battle, battle wounds, and disease. Of the million war dead, half were victims of disease.

Who?

The highway fatality count won't stop when it reaches a million a few hours from now. The tape in Death's recorder will roll on. The second million won't take nearly as long as the present rate. A little less than 30 years will do it, if we continue to let automobiles kill 35,500 annually, as they did in 1950.

We say "let" advisedly.

As long as we assume that driving is a natural talent and an innate right, as long as we allow mechanically defective cars on our highways, as long as we treat traffic offenders as bad little boys who must be made to stand in the corner for a few hours, we are tolerating highway murder.

Highways must be built for the vehicles and the traffic, not of today, but of the future.

Traffic laws must be strengthened. The Georgia Legislature will get a chance to consider a motor vehicle code that will do that. No selfish reasons should be allowed to block approval of its desirable provisions. Once passed, those laws must be enforced without fear or favor.

It's a little late for society to save "Mr. Million." Keeping yourself from earning that fatal distinction today is an individual responsibility. But we can, and must, act to slow the count from here on out.

One million persons killed by automobiles in a little more than 51 years! If you stood at Marietta and Forsyth Streets in Atlanta and watched a parade of these highway dead, one person passing you every second, you would stand there around the clock for 11 days and from midnight until noon on the 12th day.

Single file, one person every second, for 11½ days—the traffic dead of the nation.

And the horrible fact is that if you are "Mr. Million," you wouldn't be watching the procession. You'd be in it—at the end of the line.

Awful thought for the holidays, isn't it? Won't you walk and drive carefully? One million dead men shout, "Beware!"

Where Will All This Selfishness Lead?

Negotiations to prevent a threatened steel strike have broken down. As predicted, the whole muddle is now in the hands of the government.

The steelworkers' union has publicly announced it intends to break the government's wage control formula. If the formula is broken, the inflation flood will engulf the nation. Nobody will win. The consumer and the taxpayer will continue down the road toward the point of no return.

The steel industry maintains that it cannot grant the wage increase and other concessions asked by the union without a price increase which would violate the government's price control formula. In fact, the industry is already asking price increases from OPS within the limits of the control law's Capehart Amendment. A steel price increase will be reflected in the costs of all products which use steel, including weapons of war.

A strike, even if it lasts only a week, will cost the nation upwards of 2,000,000 tons of steel. If the President invokes the Taft-Hartley Law to prevent a strike, it will only postpone settlement for about 80 days. John L. Lewis' coal miners are expected to precipitate another crisis in that industry within a few weeks. Strikes in these two crucial industries would affect, directly and indirectly, millions of workers, millions of consumers, and the defense effort.

The cost-of-living index hit a new peak in November, 188.6 per cent of the 1939 base level. The figure is 10.8 per cent higher than before the outbreak of the Korean War. Miscellaneous sellers and producers of goods and services, including foods, are requesting further price increases from OPS through the Capehart Amendment loophole.

Where will it all end? When will the people of the United States begin to realize that no one group is more important than another, that continued selfish striving for advantage is leading to self-destruction. Such actions as were exhibited by the beef producers and packers in defying controls efforts have left us with controls which are not controls, with loopholes to fan inflation to ever-higher levels.

Congress had better get busy and give us a controls law which works, one that is not dictated by selfish interests for selfish purposes, but one designed to save the economy of this nation from destruction. The alternative is an "every man for himself" policy, leading to economic chaos and a shattering of our aim of security for Western civilization.

Any of These Plans Offers a Better Deal

House Speaker Fred Hand of Mitchell County and Speaker Pro Tem George Smith II of Emanuel will present to the Legislature in January a "take your choice" plan to reorganize the State Department of Education. Any one of these plans would be preferable to the present system. The three bills, as outlined by Representative Smith, would:

1. Provide that the voters of each congressional district elect a representative to the Georgia Board of Education.
2. Provide that the legislators of each congressional district choose the representative on the board.
3. Provide that the governor, with the Senate's approval, appoint members of the board.

In each case, the board would appoint the state superintendent.

Each of the plans has disadvantages, but they also have merits which would make them preferable to the present system of divided authority and divided responsibility. The present system, which the governor favors retaining, is cumbersome and inefficient. The governor appoints the board, and the people elect the superintendent. This creates difficulties which can be remedied only by eliminating the system itself.

Many counties and municipalities throughout Georgia use, at the local level, variations of the plans offered by Hand and Smith. Other counties have systems patterned after the one used on the state level. Investigations will show that generally systems where-in the boards appoint the superintendents are doing the better job.

School administrators must be trained men, qualified as specialists in their field. Some of them might be vote getters, but most of them are not. In any case, they should be selected on a basis of qualifications instead of ability to get votes.

Any of the three plans Representative Smith offers would give Georgia children a better deal. Of all public programs, education should be divorced from politics and politicians.

House by the Road Has Its Hazards

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road" may have been good advice when the poet Pess penned the lines. Today a Huntington, W. Va., resident named Turner has his doubts.

In the last 15 years motor vehicles have hit his house 16 times, the latest blow last week when a truck nicked a corner of the residence.

The item didn't say what Mr. Turner is doing about the situation, but it's likely he is out hunting the man who wrote that poem.

Walker County Messenger

No 'Over-Emphasis' With This Pair

The Messenger would like to pay a small tribute this week to two fine young men who, incidentally, are putting their town on the nation's football map.

We refer, of course, to Leon Hardeman and Dick Inman, who as sophomores at Georgia Tech have contributed in a big way toward the Golden Tornado's unbeaten season and scheduled Orange Bowl appearance.

Daily headlines have told of the athletic feats. Yet it seems to us that there's another story about these boys worth telling. And that is that they are clean, strong-minded, industrious youths with wholesome outlooks on life.

College sports are under heavy attack. Cries of "commercialism" and "overemphasis" are the order of the day. Yet it is somehow a warming feeling to see these two boys when they come home on week ends and find them unchanged by the headlines, modest, unassuming, with their feet planted firmly on the ground.

Something about them lets you know that even though they go on to greater heights on the gridiron they won't be basically changed by the ballyhoo.

If these are examples of "overemphasis," then let's have more of it.

30-Year Hunter Says Every State in South Is Ahead of Georgia in Game and Fish

Atlanta—As an old-time bird hunter—30 years as a regular—I wish to pay my compliments to one C. C. James, chief in the hatchery division of the Game and Fish commission. Mr. James is on record in The Constitution as follows: "Bird hunters are finding more quail than they have in several years," and "the quail crop" is good this year. Humph! What is he trying to do, kid somebody? He also says that on recent hunts in Wheeler and Telfair three coveys were found. Since when did three coveys become good hunting in these counties?

The season is a month old and I have found only an average of one covey a day in the counties surrounding Fulton. And my dogs are average good dogs—"meat getters"—and I think I know a good dog when I see one. Not only that but I have talked to dozens of hunters and without exception it's the same story: "No luck." Articles like the above are evidently written for the benefit of out-of-state hunters and are most unfair to local hunters and fishermen.

Why don't they deal in facts over on Capitol Hill? I know, and every bird hunter in Georgia knows! Politics! Old-fashioned rotten politics! That is the answer. I haven't forgotten the DeKalb County "incident," and now they want to put in another hatchery down Albany way. For whom? The 30,000-acre boys, of course! Humph! 83 counties stocked! WHERE?

Every state in the South is ahead of Georgia in game and fish, and we will stay behind unless the politicians wake up to the facts and make up their minds to do something about it. The quail season is entirely too long in the first place—longer than that in any other state in the Union, I think, and it should be shortened.

A 30-YEAR HUNTER.

You Cannot Stay Angry With Santa

St. Louis, Mo.—Santa Claus comes nearer to pleasing everybody than any other living man.

He has been consistent at it, too. Ever since he was big enough to tote his Christmas bag of toys, he has been loved everywhere.

If Santa has failed to provide gloves for old hands; heat for the cold, and food for the hungry, it was because he was too busy to get around.

Santa might on some occasion leave a gift for a boy or girl which wasn't what was expected but I've never seen anybody get mad at Santa and stay mad through the following Christmas.

Of course, Mrs. Santa Claus might get a little peeved at old Santa when he comes in late and starts telling her about the bad weather and slow transportation he encountered.

Mrs. White's Books Called 'a Blessing'

Fredericktown, Mo.—The Review and Herald, general church paper of the Seventh-Day Adventists, recently quoted from one of Dr. Thomas Elliott's editorial columns in The Constitution with favorable comments on the writings of Mrs. Ellen G. White. I am pleased that he liked the books, "Patriarchs and Prophets" and "Prophecy and Kings."

I, too, receive much help from these books, as well as many more of Mrs. White's books that I possess.

May I suggest reading her book, "The Great Controversy?" It contains a special message for the last days—just prior to the coming of the Lord. I think you would enjoy reading this book, and I trust it may be a great blessing to you.

If I could have only two books in my home, I would choose the Bible and "The Great Controversy."

MRS. STANNIE WEEMS.

'Truman Is Naive Or Far Worse'

Atlanta—President Truman is either naive—or far, far worse.

Now there is no direct and positive evidence that he is worse, so in all fairness we must rate him naive.

We once had a very naive man in the White House named U. S. Grant and to this day the Democratic Party and particularly and naturally the Southern branch, including your paper has never forgiven him his naivete.

There was another naive president named Warren Harding. While he let his "Ohio gang" ruin his reputation, it should not be overlooked that in addition to the one convicted crook close to him, there were men like Coolidge, Hughes, Mellon, Hoover and Dawes against whom not one word of ethical criticism has even yet been said. We must forget these gentlemen and remember only Harding and his secretary of the interior.

Now—what do you propose to do with Mr. Truman? When the cards are down, I dare suggest that in November, 1952, you will be moving heaven and earth in conjunction with Governor Talmadge and others to re-elect him President of the United States of America.

Guns vs. Butter Again the Issue

WASHINGTON—The whole country—for everybody will be affected—is heading into a debate when Congress gets back after the New Year on what we came to call, during the early defense program stages of the Second World War, "Guns vs. Butter." That is not a precise description of the situation now, but near enough to suggest to the public the pressing problem of how closely we must approach all-out production for military purposes, and what can, or should, be left for production of the so-called civilian goods we use in our everyday lives.

While policy for the months ahead seems fairly well determined at top levels here, it invites debate because of circumstances. For 1952 is a big political year, as we know. Various factors in the complicated military-civilian production problem are almost bound to intrude into politics, which means controversy and debate, since we are that sort of folks. If pressures are severe enough, that might provoke shifts in policy by Congress itself, which would be risky for our security.

The problem would be confused further, psychologically, by an end to the Korean War; that is, if that should bring a letdown among our people who are, by nature, easy-going and congenitally optimistic when it comes to threats beyond our borders. Such a letdown could very easily be encouraged, or even exploited, for politics' sake in a campaign year, particularly because of the frustrating character of the Korean War. The temptation may be great for those we vaguely call the "new isolationists."

It is, plainly, a time for steadiness and balance against one extreme or the other, and for acceptance of the long pull and what that takes. Pitfalls in the path are well understood by President Truman and his civil and military aides and advisers. As a consequence, he is prepared to state the case clearly and forcibly to the people in his message to Congress which, necessarily, will stress the need for more belt-tightening, higher taxes, stronger economic controls, with resultant continued sacrifice and further disruption of the civilian economy, coupled with a warning against any letdown.

We are headed for more cutbacks. In civilian production, with the big bite to come perhaps in the second quarter of the year. Shortages exist currently in aluminum, copper and nickel, among other components of both military and civilian production.

A Wise Old Bird Dog

A Cherokee County bird dog, chief character in a paragraph by J. P. Farham of Canton, has earned a place in the canine kennel of fame alongside Boots Birdsong's window pointer and Tige Pickle's filling station felst at Blakely.

"Two of the North Canton boys went out hunting one day last week," says J. B. in his North Georgia Tribune column. "They had a good dog, but after a spell of hunting they missed the dog, and heard the horn of their auto footling. They returned to the car to find the dog sitting in the front seat blowing the horn. He knew there were no birds."

SOME SEASONAL NOTES:

The Indianapolis Speedway is already getting orders for tickets to the 500-Mile Memorial Day auto race. Thus The Indianapolis Star was inspired to note, "They love the 500-Miler in December as they do in May."

Mrs. J. D. Orr of Rt. 1, Tennille, will have no more Christmas trees cut from her property due to the fact "that the public cuts several and leaves them lying—for one that looks better," she advises in a classified in The Sandersville Progress.

JEST FOR TODAY: A woman got on an Atlanta elevator. As soon as the operator closed the door the woman became talkative.

"Don't you ever weary of going up and down in this elevator all day?" she asked.

"Yes'm," replied the operator. "Is it the motion of going down that you mind most?"

"No'm."

"The motion going up?"

"No'm."

"Closing the heavy door?"

"No'm."

"Opening it?"

"No'm."

"What is it then?"

"Answering questions."

A Rhyme a Day

"Christmas spending will probably reach all-time high."—Trade note.

The merry sound of jingle-bells . . . is sweet to anyone who sells . . . it blends so nicely with the chiming . . . of tinkling dollars, cents and dimes . . . and muted music of the bells . . . that bulge from many well-worn tills.

Now I remember, as a boy . . . my childish heart was filled with joy . . . as I looked forward to the day . . . that always seemed so far away . . . but now the months go by so fast . . . we leave the winter's frigid blast . . . enjoy an hour or two of spring . . . and have a short vacation fling . . . then autumn, passing like a flash . . . reminds us of the need for cash . . . which is the rope and clapper when . . . we ring the jingle-bells again.

"Come all ye faithful" friends of mine . . . come in and sing it on the line" . . . and ring the merry jingle-bells . . . and sing hosannas and Noels . . . you have eleven months to pay . . . for what you get on Christmas Day . . . let's give a big round of applause . . . to suppersman Santa Claus.

POW Write 5 Families In Georgia

Georgia families of five prisoners of war in Korea Friday had received personal messages from their fighting men... just a short time after they received official notice the men were on the Red POW list.

Meanwhile, the name of another Georgian, Maj. John J. Dunn, of Columbus, was added to the Defense department's list of American servicemen reported by the Communists as prisoners of war.

Letters from Georgians in prisoner of war camps were welcomed as "Christmas presents" by Mrs. Agnes Middleton, Mrs. Elizabeth Jeffers, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Roberts and Mrs. Jerry Morgan, all of Columbus.

And a radio message broadcast over Radio Peking from "Capt. D. S. Kern (O-664306)", prisoner of war in North Korea, was forwarded to the family of Capt. Joe S. Hearn in Marshallville.

Although the name was given wrong, Mrs. Hearn believes the message is from her husband. The serial number is the same, except for the question mark, and Captain Hearn was listed by the Communists on their prisoner of war list.

Mrs. Middleton, an attractive, red-haired English war bride, thought her husband was dead.

She said she was told by a soldier in Ft. Benning Hospital that her husband had died of exposure after he was stripped of his clothes by the Communists.

A letter from Sgt. Marvin E. Jeffers to his wife, Elizabeth, read:

"I hear the negotiations are on again. Maybe they will get this thing settled this time."

Third Columbus family to get a letter was that of Sgt. Jerry Morgan. Mrs. Morgan said Sgt. Morgan's letter, dated Oct. 24, said he was feeling well, getting plenty to eat and getting enough recreation to "keep happy."

Sgt. Gaines C. Roberts, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Roberts, wrote on Oct. 24 that he was "getting along O. K. and in good health."

In Augusta, Mrs. Kennet K. Badke received a 112-page booklet containing two photos of her husband, M/Sgt. Kennet K. Badke, a prisoner of war in Korea.

The booklet, sent by mail from an address in Prague, Czechoslovakia, purports to have messages from more than 700 prisoners in Korea.

'Family Christmas Slogan' Is Stressed by Many Denominations

By PAT LIVINGSTON

Sunday will be "family Christmas Sunday" in churches all over Atlanta.

The Rev. Harrison McMains, pastor of First Christian Church, selected that apt phrase to describe services planned for his congregation, and other denominations might well echo it.

The glorious old-but-ever-new story of the Christ Child's birth will be told in sermon and song in churches over the city, with families reunited for the Yuletide season hearing it together.

Servicemen home on leave from the armed forces and students on holiday will receive special greetings in many city churches. At Central Presbyterian Church returning students will enjoy a Sunday night supper.

Christmas messages from pulpits Sunday in some instances will precede special services planned for Christmas Day and Christmas Eve. At the Lutheran Church of the Messiah, young people will launch Christmas observances with 6:30 p. m. Sunday caroling, making the rounds to homes of shut-ins.

The church will inaugurate a planned annual "carol sing" at 8 p. m. Sunday, with Mrs. Dorothea Jackson, choir director, leading the singing. Annual Christmas Eve candlelight services at 11 p. m. Monday will include a sermon on "The Miracle of Christmas" by the Rev. Dermon A. Sox, pastor, and end with the candle-bearing members of the congregation following the choir out of the church, to hear a benediction pronounced from the church steps.

At St. Luke's Episcopal Church, where Hugh Hodgson is organist and master of choristers, the choir will present "The Magnificat" by Johann Sebastian Bach at 8 p. m.

Sunday. The full choir of 50 voices will be accompanied by a string ensemble. Soloists will be Mrs. Evelyn Aderholt, soprano; Diane Radebaugh, contralto; John Calvin Brown, tenor, and Coleman Kimbro, baritone. The processional hymn will be "Lo, He Comes With Clouds Descending," the recessional, "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones."

The combined adult and junior choirs of Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church will sing Christmas anthems and carols at 7:30 p. m. choral service Sunday. Directing will be Mrs. Elizabeth Abbott Taylor, organist and music director, assisted by Ruth Dabney Smith, violinist, and Mrs. Betty Buchanan Bowles, pianist. Dr. M. G. Gutzke, pastor, will give a Christmas sermon.

"The Star Still Shines," a cantata-pageant by Roger C. Wilson, will combine a choir of mixed voices and a cast of characters in the 7:45 p. m. Sunday program at First Church of the Nazarene. Included in the cast will be Jettie Chambers, Myrtice Hill, Mildred Chambers, Charlotte Hampton, Fletcher Chilton, Gladys Johnson, Louise McKee, Ruby Warren, Moss Causey, Alva Mize, Royster Moss, E. B. Moss, Jerry Causey, Edward Harvey, Mac Goodson, Franklin Green and the pastor, the Rev. Wendell Wellman, who directs.

George D. Crawford, minister of music at Kirkwood Baptist Church, who arranged and directed a many-voiced musical drama at his church Wednesday, will include Christmas songs in the choral prelude and postlude for the 11 a. m. Sunday service. The five choirs will sing Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus," with soloists for the various numbers to include Mrs. Robert Holley, contralto; and Mary E. L. Lyon, Peggy McNair, J. N. Harper and W. C. Pattillo. Mrs. J. C. McNair is choir director.

The choirs and members of the Church school at Trinity Methodist Church will present the pageant "Tell Me The Christmas Story" at 7:30 p. m. Sunday with music under the direction of Douglas Wauchope and Mrs. Cecil Myers. The service will begin with the singing of many familiar carols, followed by the pageant. T. Cecil Myers is pastor of the church at the corner of Washington St. and Trinity Ave., S. W.

Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church will hold its Children's Christmas service at 7:30 p. m. Sunday with a pageant, "The Christmas Story." Theodore G. Ahrendt is pastor. The church plans two festival services, the first at 8 p. m. Christmas Eve when the choir, Rumble is director of music and Edward Bryson, organist.

A program of Christmas carols will be presented at 7:30 p. m. at played as a teller at a savings and loan association here.

Her counsel, Edward Quick, pleaded vainly with Federal Judge Marion S. Boyd to grant probation. He said Mrs. Whiddon had spent "every penny to support her family" after the husband, Leroy, became unemployed. They have a daughter, 17, and a 12-year-old son.

Ann Clark will be soloist; Rose Rowold, organist.

Covenant Presbyterian Church will present "The Christmas Story" cantata at 7:30 p. m. Sunday. Soloists of the choir will be Avis Geis, Mrs. Frank Hamilton, Robert Upic, Mrs. Douglas Rumble Jr. A small orchestra composed of Ed. ward Pritchett, Meredit Zara, Mike Farmer, Carolyn Farmer, Priscilla Goodwin and a Larry Waggoner will accompany the choir. Rumble is director of music and Edward Bryson, organist.

A program of Christmas carols will be presented at 7:30 p. m. at

'Christmas as Usual,' Jailed Mother Asks

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 21. (AP)—"Have Christmas for the children just like we planned it," Mrs. Christine Whiddon told her weeping husband.

With that, the 37-year-old woman was led off to jail Friday to begin serving a three-year sentence for embezzlement. She pleaded guilty to taking $3,240 while em-played as a teller at a savings and loan association here.

Her counsel, Edward Quick, pleaded vainly with Federal Judge Marion S. Boyd to grant probation. He said Mrs. Whiddon had spent "every penny to support her family" after the husband, Leroy, became unemployed. They have a daughter, 17, and a 12-year-old son.

Moreland Avenue Baptist Church, climaxed by a candlelighting service. The "Prophecy, the Preparation and the Fulfillment of the Saviour's Birth" will be the scriptural theme of narration and music. The entire congregation will participate in the Service of Lights. The Rev. Bertram King, pastor of the church for more than six years, will be narrator. Music will be directed by Herman O. Logan.

Christmas carols and anthems will be sung at 7:30 p. m. at Grant Park Methodist Church

Brookhaven Victory Day
Sunday has been set aside as Victory Day at Brookhaven Methodist Church. Special offerings have been made to reduce the church's indebtedness and place it in "a more able position to meet the expanding needs about it," according to Sam Harrison, chairman of the Board of Stewards. The Rev. William A. Johnson Jr. directed a committee of seven Board members in the campaign.

Santa's Bag Filled
Epworth Methodist Church played Santa to itself Friday night when members "filled Santa's bag with gifts for the building fund." Members loaded the tree down with envelopes containing contributions to the fund.

Present Babies
Peachtree Christian Church will hold its annual "Presentation of Children" at 11 a. m. Sunday when parents will bring their babies to the altar to be dedicated unto God at the close of the service. Parents will rededicate themselves to God, at which time there is an acceptance by the church of a real responsibility for the training of these children in the knowledge and love of God.

Feast of Chanukah
Chanukah, the Feast of Lights, will be observed by Atlanta's Jewish Community beginning at sundown Sunday and continuing for eight days. The festival commemorates the victory of the Jewish people, led by Judah Maccabee, over the Syrian-Greek Antiochus Epiphanes in his cohorts. The despoiled Temple was cleansed and rededicated, and there was great rejoicing once again in the triumph over tyranny and oppression.

To celebrate this joyous holiday, candles are lighted by Jewish families in their homes on each of the eight nights of the festival—one candle on the first night, two on the second, etc., until all are burning on the eighth night. It is also customary to exchange gifts on this happy occasion. Where there are children in the family, gifts should be placed around the menorah each night and distributed after the lighting of the candles.

Friday night, in observance of the festival, a musical program of selections from Handel's Oratorio, "Judas Maccabaeus" was presented. Dr. Charles A. Sheldon trained a special double quartet for the occasion.

Soph Geri, Frosh Walston State's Stars Among Pros

By EDWIN POPE

The state's emissaries to professional football had a let-down in 1951 and still placed two men on the second all-National Football League team. That's how stout Georgia and Tech's contributions to the dash-for-cash fraternity have become.

Joe Geri, ex-shouldered old Bulldog halfback who roped an all-pro seat his first season (1950) with the Pittsburgh Steelers, ran into the sophomore jinx—set defenses. He landed on his feet and on the second teams of both The Sporting News' and United Press' all-pro selections.

Bob Walston, Georgia's gift to the Philadelphia Eagles, won an alternate all-star end position his rookie year. He was fourth in NFL scoring with 94 points caught 31 passes for 512 yards. He very likely will be named Rookie of the Year.

Dan Edwards, Walston's old Athens chum, failed to repeat on the elite lists but he led the New York Yanks in receiving with 39 catches for 519 yards.

On the defensive flanks, Cleveland's George Young and Washington's Joe Tereshinski, each a former Georgian, carried their veteran colors well.

Charlie Trippi, maybe the toothiest Bulldog of them all, chucked the savvy of four pro halfbacking seasons, stepped in as the Chicago Cardinals quarterback, and did himself proud. Tech's Jim Still stood in briefly behind Trippi. Georgian Johnny Rauch shipped from the Yanks to the Eagles and completed five of 12 passes for 51 yards in his only Philly appearance.

Fullback Frank Ziegler hauled his spindle shanks to 418 Eagle yards. Pat McHugh, a Tech teammate of Ziegler, was the Eagles' sidebacking regular.

Floyd (Breezy) Reid, out of Georgia two years ago, shared halfbacking duties at Green Bay with one of the real Old Pros—Tony Canadeo. Floyd breezed 21 times for a 3.3 average, had better luck on the other end with eight catches for 102 yards.

Georgia coach Wallace Butts special-delivered two linemen to the big show. Each broke in with Santa Clara, and with a bang, Nick Feher, who took a flyer at coaching Murphy High here in the Spring, was a key in the 49ers comeback from 1950 dejection. Line coach Phil Bengtson called Nick "the best rookie guard in the league... as good a trap or downfield blocker as I have ever seen."

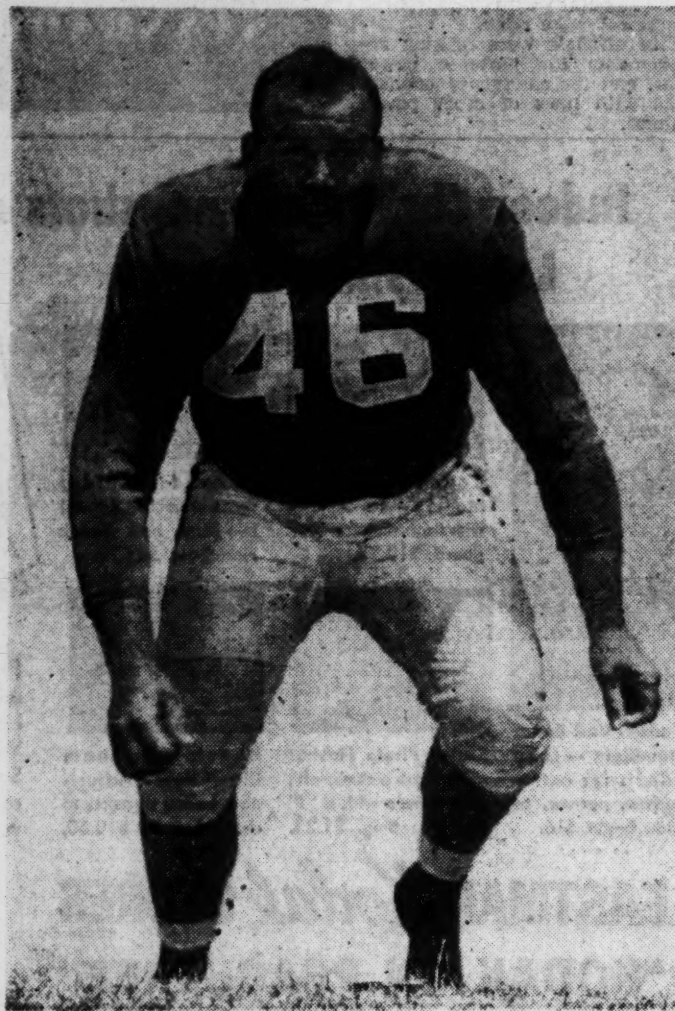

Hamp Tanner of Macon threw Frisco quarters into turmoil when he reported at a blubbery 289. Slimmed to 259, he was starting defensive left tackle.

Behind the cold facts, there were some personal stories:

Walston was never an outstanding blocker at Georgia and figured a long shot chance to stick with the Eagles. Whether it was the bread-and-butter proposition or what, Bob made giant strides on his line work and took it from there with his great natural speed and deception. Best example of the Spartan training he received at Georgia: In one game, he caught a TD pass, ran into a stone barrier, bounced off, landed on his head unconscious, was revived, leaped to his feet and kicked the extra point.

In 1949, Ziegler was third draft choice of the Eagles. When then-coach Greasy Neale first glimpsed the deceptively hollow-eyed racer, he became almost despondent. He was to feel better in 1950 when Ziegler was second only in league rushing to Cleveland giant Negro Marion Motley. This season Ziegler had another excellent season—sans Neale, fired almost before the season started.

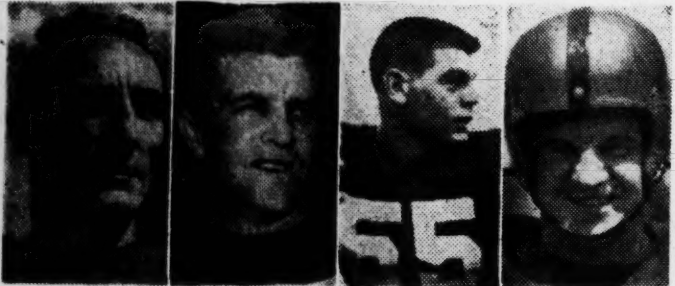

At mid-season, Geri wrote: "... they've stopped me so far, but I'm still hoping to do better for Big Mike, and also so I can make the trip to the West Coast to the Pro Bowl." Big Mike was coach Johnny Michelosen—who was fired this week. But Geri was picked for his second Pro Bowl appearance after scoring 63 points.

Bud Kerr Succeeds Kuharich as Don Pilot

Condensed From Constitution Wire Services

Joe Kuharich resigned Friday as head football coach of the University of San Francisco Dons and line coach William (Bud) Kerr, formerly of Athens (Ga.) Navy Preflight school, was given the job.

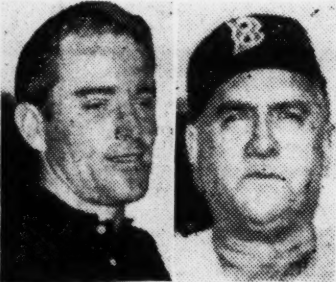

Kuharich gave UFS its first unbeaten, untied football season this year. He did not announce future plans. But it was understood he is interested in the vacant head coach job for the Chicago Cardinals' pro team and posts at Indiana and Pitt.

Kerr was all-American end at Notre Dame in 1939.

LSU announced a boxing schedule of seven dual meets and two tournaments, Southern Invitational and National Collegiate. The Tigers also seek their fourth straight Sugar Bowl Tournament victory next Thursday.

Amateur golfer Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, who underwent an emergency appendectomy at Miami, was reported in "good" condition.

The Pennsylvania Senate absolved Manager Steve O'Neill of any blame in the failure of the Boston Red Sox to win the American League pennant. O'Neill is from Lackawanna, Pa. The resolution said the Sox's failure should not be "attributed in any way to the managerial tactics of Steve O'Neill."

Tennessee Coach Bob Neyland announced a 53-man squad will be taken to New Orleans for the Sugar Bowl game with Maryland.

Tampa, after two winning seasons under former Georgian Frank Sinkwich, plans to play tougher teams next season. Tampa is dicker with Clemson and wants to get back on the Florida schedule.

Coach Herman Hickman of Yale was so pleased with his North team in practice for the Shrine game at Miami Christmas night that he said there would be no more heavy workouts.

Bob Blaik, former Army star now of Colorado College, and Wyoming end Dewey McConnell were chosen co-captains of the North team for the Miami game.

Daily Double In London Pays 1,348 to One

LONDON, Dec. 21—(P)—The daily double at Hurst Park race track Friday paid off at odds of 1,348 to one.

Three $1.40 (10 shilling) tickets were sold on the winning combination of Pearly Prince and Clay Pit. Each winner collected a Christmas present of $1,887.20.

The record double in English betting paid odds of 18,892 to one when Near Relation won the Cesarewitch Handicap and Commander III won the Camerigilshire at Newmarket in 1935.

West Loses Aggie Ace Bob Smith

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21—(P)—Texas A&M's ace fullback Bob Smith was declared ineligible to be in the East-West football game Dec. 29. X-rays disclosed he had a cracked vertebra, suffered in his final college contest.

The injury was sustained in the clash with Texas, but it did not show up in pictures taken at that time.

Smith's loss was a jolt to the West. He had been counted upon for considerable defensive duty. Western coaches doubted there would be time to bring in a replacement. The West, practicing at Stanford, worked on defense during its morning workout. A heavier drill was scheduled for the afternoon.

The East squad, training at Santa Clara, was still without the services of all-around fullback Vic Janowicz of Ohio State. Bad weather conditions have delayed his arrival but he was expected to fly in Friday.

It was camera day in the Eastern camp but coach Clarence Munn of Michigan State, who is installing the single wing attack, put the squad through a brisk half hour morning workout when the photographers finished.

Georgia Five Loses Dykes

ATHENS, Dec. 22—Georgia's varsity basketball team has lost the services of Abner (Sonny) Dykes, senior forward of Cochran, Ga.

The 6-0, 170-pound Dykes, who lettered during the 1949-50 season, but did not get into varsity action last season, will be ineligible during the next school quarter due to scholastic deficiency.

Coach Harbin (Red) Lawson commented: "Dykes' loss will hurt us. He was alternating as a regular and had started two of our four games this month."

Dykes played right field on the Bulldog nine last spring and was the club's second best hitter with a .346 average.

Bullpups Nip Athens High

Special to The Constitution

ATHENS, Dec. 21—Georgia's freshman basketball team edged Athens High, 51-48, Friday night.

The Trojans led 26-23 at half but were overcome by a late Bullpup rush. A field goal in the last second of play by Charley Parrott, who played last season for Athens, insured the Georgia triumph.

Tom Herndon led Georgia with 14 points and Bob Duncan had as many for Athens.

Substitutes: Athens—Wallace (8), Barber (4), Georgia—Fletcher (8), Ralman (1).

By HUGH FULLERTON JR. NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(P)—When the bigwigs of college athletics gather for the National Collegiate A. A. convention early next month it is almost certain that they will impose a limit on spring football practice.

These two points were the only ones of the 12 cooked up by the NCAA council on which various major conferences came close to agreeing at their separate meetings within the past few weeks.

The council's resolutions, in planning the vaguely outlined 12-point program first outlined, offered the conferences the choice between the complete elimination of spring football practice and restricting it to 20 sessions of actual workouts.

These would not include "skull" sessions but only work on the field.

Three major conferences, the Southeastern, the Big Seven and the Border, agreed to this 20-day restriction. The Southwest went even further, imposing a limit of 18 sessions within 25 days and the Rocky Mountain Conference cut its limit for 1952 to 15 days.

In addition the Pacific Coast Conference voted to instruct its delegate at the NCAA convention to support the limiting of spring football, and the Missouri Valley Conference expressed its willingness to conform with any action the NCAA might take.

Only the Big Ten flatly rejected all proposals, adhering to the theory that there is nothing wrong with spring practice as now conducted in that conference.

The sprawling Eastern College Athletic Conference, after barely defeating a motion to do away with spring drills, voted down proposals to restrict the length of practice.

The platoon system, tied with spring practice in discussions as an expensive luxury and a source of over-emphasis, found unexpected support among the small colleges. They voted down the Eastern proposal to make strong representations to the football rules committee to change the substitution rule.

The Southeastern and Southwest Conferences also rejected proposals for a change. The Border

Jackets Rated No. 1 In 'Scarritt System' Alabama Prof Places Tech Just Ahead of Spartans

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story results from a football rating system devised by Prof. Charles W. Scarritt, University of Alabama. The system is based on the strength of the opposition in each game and over the course of the season, and evaluated scientifically).

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Dec. 21—The Ramblin' Wreck from Georgia Tech is the champion of the nation for the regular 1951 football season, according to the Scarritt System of ranking.

The Engineers, champs also of the tough Southeastern Conference, came out ahead of second-place Michigan State by a narrow squeak—3,556 rating units to 3,547. The system makes the Orange Bowl look the best of the New Year's Day affairs, with the champs pitted against the No. 6 team, Baylor.

The Rose Bowl contestants are ranked No. 3 (Illinois) and No. 5 (Stanford). Tennessee, host team in the Sugar Bowl and ranked first in both the AP and UP opinion polls, comes out only fourth under this system, while its bowl opponent, Maryland, is relegated to 11th place.

Georgia Tech, then, is awarded the title, even though a tie with Duke mars its record. Its total achievement, in the light of a very tough schedule, the system shows, was the most remarkable. Tech, in other words, conquered "the most and the bestest" teams of any contender for national honors.

Besides licking seven members of its own league, where there are no soft spots, the Yellow Jackets from Atlanta beat the always dangerous SMU Mustangs and VMI, which went undefeated through its own conference. Tech also beat little Davidson, but that game is not even counted in this system because of the inequality of the teams. Eliminating this game entirely, Tech still comes out on top.

The reason Tennessee, with a flawless record as to losses, comes out no better than fourth under this system lies in the comparative softness of its schedule. The system can give the Vols little credit for wallowing such teams as Chattanooga and Tennessee Tech. Also they picked on Southern Conference elevenies like Washington and Lee and North Carolina, neither one very strong this year.

Maryland, another ever-victorious aggregation rated high in news service polls, comes out here much lower because of an even flabbier schedule. The greatest achievements were wins over two Southeastern toughies, LSU and

Hurley declared: "The IBC's offer of 15 per cent to Harry Matthews, boxing's hottest box office attraction, to fight Joey Maxim is an insult and I won't even dignify it with a reply."

The IBC indicated that Maxim would get the champion's 45 per cent slice.

State Ports Authority's Balance Up

Thrasher Questions Some Practices

The Georgia ports Authority and the Savannah ports and terminal facilities earned $684,591 in the last fiscal year.

State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. reported that the Authority spent $383,827 for operating expenses and new equipment in the year ending last June 30. That left a cash balance on hand July 1 of $469,444, an increase of more than $300,000 over the previous year.

The audit shows that the Authority had 93 employees on June 30 as compared with 17 the previous year and that it spent $230,739 for personal services last year as compared with $139,838 in the previous year.

In the audit, Thrasher called attention of the Legislature to certain expenditures which he said would be illegal and improper if the agency were subject to state laws in the same manner as other state departments.

Those expenditures included ownership of three Jeeps and three passenger automobiles, one of which was assigned to Director Henry Sweet. Also listed were payments of $40 to the Savannah Chamber of Commerce by Sweet; payment of $174.20 for "promotional expense" by D. Leon Williams; and $27.82 for "entertaining visitors."

Thrasher said the items "are called to the attention of the General Assembly so that action may be taken, if desired, to clearly define the powers of this authority which was created by legislative act."

Thrasher also filed a complaint audit of the state ports committee listing expenditures of $35,645 for the fiscal year.

Commenting on the report of State Auditor Thrasher, Sweet said the expenditures were under authority of a ruling by the state attorney general, Eugene Cook.

"The state port is a public corporation but with private functions in developing the business of the state," Sweet said. "We have it under authority of the attorney general that we can spend for our necessary requirements from earnings of the port and this we are doing economically and within our legal rights."

"If a state port could not spend enough promotionally to put over its objectives and encourage industry and overseas shipping it would die a natural death."

"Any appropriation made by the state that may have been spent by us has been disbursed under the rules and regulations of the auditing department."

"I quote the following excerpt from a letter written to me by Atty. Gen. Cook, dated Jan. 11 this year: 'You are certainly authorized to use earnings of the port authority for any purpose necessary for the development of the port. My official opinion so directs.'"

METROPOLITAN TRANSIT ROUTES
Bus Lines Serve Suburban Areas

Suburban Busses Rerouted By Metropolitan Transit

By ALBERT RILEY

The Metropolitan Transit Co.—little brother of the huge Atlanta Transit Co.—has extended service on four of its 10 bus lines within the past few weeks to provide transportation for more than 1,500 additional family units in growing metropolitan Atlanta.

Formerly the Suburban Coach is that Metropolitan can pick up or discharge passengers but not both pick up and discharge an average of 11,000 suburbanites 6,000 miles a day over the 270-mile round-trip network of its 10 lines.

In addition to rerouting its service on its Sandy Springs and Lawson General lines to the north and its Ben Hill-East Point and Fairburn-Sylvan lines to the south, the company has added three new busses to its schedules. These include one additional bus each on the Sandy Springs, Lawson General and Avondale-Pine Lake lines.

COMMUTER SERVICE

The company's other lines include Garden Hills and Ridgewood—West Wesley to the north, Stone Mountain, Glenwood and Tucker to the east.

Metropolitan provides almost the only bus service for commuters in the Atlanta area not served by the Atlanta Transit Company's sprawling operation of 433 trackless trolleys and 128 busses that carry an average of 380,000 passengers an estimated total of 55,452 miles a day—a mileage twice the circumference of the earth.

The only other commuter bus line is importance in the area is the Interurban line which serves residents in the Conley, Orchard Knob and Forest Park areas.

Metropolitan, then the Suburban Coach Company, was bought by Atlanta Transit several months ago, following a prolonged strike of drivers on the Suburban lines.

Under their franchise agreements, Metropolitan and Atlanta Transit do not duplicate service, although their vehicles sometimes run over the same streets coming in and out of town. Their rule

Name Plates Stolen From Embassies

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(P)—Name plates have been stolen from the Egyptian and Chilean embassies as well as from the Russian embassy and Romanian legation, it developed Friday.

The State department has expressed regret to officials of all four countries, reporters were told.

Washington police were asked to investigate in each case. State department press officer Lincoln White said the Egyptian and Chilean embassies reported orally to the department but did not protest, like Russian and Romanian officials did.

White laughed off a reporter's suggestion that the thefts resulted from the current campaign to collect scrap metal to meet defense needs.

Asked whether the State department agreed with the Soviet complaint that the thefts were the work of "unknown hooligans," White said he did not know the precise meaning of the term as used by the Communists.

Special Rail Rate Withdrawn for Sea Island Cotton

The Georgia Public Service Commission Friday authorized all railroads in the state to eliminate special rates for Sea Island cotton.

The railroads, which had tried twice before to obtain the elimination, reported there has been no shipment of this cotton in Georgia in the last 12 months.

In the nation's early history, the silky, long staple fiber created a lush empire along the Georgia and South Carolina coast. In later years, efforts have been to revive its culture because of the premium price it brings. Obstacles have been its susceptibility to boll weevil damage and difficulty in ginning, along with imports of similar staple.

POLICE BLOTTER

Extortion Count Jails Man Here

Louis Alfred Danforth, 53, Friday was lodged in Fulton Tower after being arrested by FBI agents on charges of sending threatening letters through the mails in an attempt to extort money, J. J. Casper, special agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI office, said.

Danforth admitted mailing a letter on Dec. 15 to Hubert T. Jenkins, of Chamblee, threatening to burn down Jenkins' home unless a specified amount of money was paid, Casper related. He said Danforth was convicted for similar offenses in 1945, 1947 and 1950.

Trolley Affray

A 33-year-old Negro laborer was admitted to Grady Hospital in critical condition with a bullet wound in the chest after a shooting affray on a South Atlanta trolley Friday, police reported.

Walter C. Jones, 33, of 1063 Garibaldi St., S. W., told Dets. W. S. Acree and J. M. Pack that when he boarded the trolley at McDaniel and Arthur Sts., S. W., a Negro man standing nearby said: "You're the man that hit me Sunday," then opened fire on Jones with a pistol. The assailant fled through a side door.

More Burgling

The decision to extend this highest possible honor to Churchill was disclosed Friday by Vice-President Alben W. Barkley, the Senate's presiding officer, after a cabinet meeting and after a telephone conversation with Speaker Sam Rayburn of the House of Representatives.

Barkley had rung up Rayburn in Texas to suggest the arrangement and found the speaker entirely agreeable.

Churchill, the vice-president added, probably would appear before Congress about Jan. 17. It was his understanding, he said, that the prime minister would arrive here early in January to spend some time in Washington "and then go to Canada and return here to address the joint session of the two houses on his second round."

The vice-president made his announcement simply by telephoning the Senate press gallery, remarking "this is Barkley," and giving his news.

He had returned to the Capitol a short time beforehand from the White House where President Truman and his cabinet had gone over the international situation at a two-hour meeting.

Vice-President Barkley himself was one of those who spoke there. The conferees also heard reports from W. Averell Harriman, director of mutual security and the President's special foreign policy adviser, and Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath told reporters that nothing whatever was said about domestic affairs.

The prospect at the Capitol was that Churchill would mount the dais in the House of Representatives, where all joint sessions are held, at about the time that a new debate on foreign affairs was beginning in the Senate. Some members of Congress returning from trips to Europe have indicated dissatisfaction with the progress of the foreign aid program in both its military and economic aspects.

The available congressional information has indicated, nevertheless, that any Churchill request for further monetary aid to Britain would not be well received and the general speculation in Washington Friday night was that none would be made by the prime minister himself.

Police Set Skate Areas To Avert Yule Tragedies

Portions of a dozen streets in Negro sections of Atlanta will be reserved as skating areas over the holidays in an attempt to eliminate Yule tragedies, Traffic Supt. T. J. Sikes said Friday.

Sikes said the streets would be marked "play area—do not enter" from Christmas Day until school reopens.

The move is experimental, Sikes declared. He said if it proves workable this year, the number of streets reserved will be increased next year.

"We decided to try it first in Negro sections because the white sections are less congested and have better sidewalks," Sikes said. He added a 12-year-old Negro schoolboy on skates was killed by an automobile last Christmas and several others were injured.

Skating areas will include: Leonard St., S. W., between the By-Pass and Peters St.; Walnut St., S. W., beside the E. A. Ware School; Richardson St., S. E., between Martin and Connally Sts.; Tanner St., N. E., between Hilliard and St. West St., S. W., between Fletcher and Boykin Sts.; Whitehouse Dr., S. W., in front of Washington High School; Stonewall St., S. W., between Walker St. and the By Pass; Carter St., S. W., between Chestnut and Tallferro Sts.; East Ave., N. E., between Glen Iris Dr. and Fortune St.; Hunt St., N. E., between Pine St. and Merritts Ave.; Edwards St., N. W., from Western Ave. to dead end, and Dodge St., between Hilliard and Fort Sts.

Salary Board To Get Help In Cleaning Up 8,000 Cases

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—Economic Stabilizer Roger L. Putnam announced Friday a new campaign to break a log jam in stabilizing white collar salaries.

Millican Asks Tightening Of Primaries

State Sen. Everett Millican announced Friday he will seek legislation for tighter control of local Georgia primaries when the General Assembly convenes Jan. 14.

The Atlanta legislator said he favors fixing salaries for local Democratic executive committee men and officers as one phase of this program. He said he is studying the whole primary situation for other possible changes.

Rules of the Atlanta committee set no fixed salaries but the committee votes compensation from entrance fees collected.

At the same time the Atlanta League of Women's Voters revealed it will renew a campaign to bar local government employees from membership on the city and county committees.

The December issue of "Facts," the league's official publication, will urge employees of local governments be prohibited from serving on executive groups, which direct primaries.

T. Elton Drake, new chairman of the city executive committee, has supported earlier demands for the ouster of municipal workers who may be influenced by their bosses.

Hartsfield Okays 3 Measures and Rejects Fourth

Mayor Hartsfield signed three council-approved measures and vetoed a fourth Friday.

The three measures approved include a new 25-mill tax rate for the city under the Plan of Improvement, an $850,000 annual salary hike for 3,200 municipal employees, and rezoning for business a stretch of Johnson Road near Peachtree Creek.

The mayor vetoed an ordinance requiring developers of low-rent housing projects to obtain approval of the Atlanta Planning Commission and to get a special permit from city council. He said the ordinance had not been discussed at a public hearing.

Grunewald Mute Before House Probe

By PAUL P. KENNEDY
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—Henry W. Grunewald, who on Dec. 12 demanded, on advice of counsel that he be allowed to appear in open hearing before a congressional subcommittee, Friday refused to testify before that group even in open hearing—again on advice of counsel.

The open session lasted about an hour and a half and was repeatedly interrupted by sharp words between the subcommittee and Grunewald's attorney, William Power Maloney, who was threatened with being forcibly ejected from the hearing room.

Rep. Eugene J. Keogh (Dem., N. Y.) and temporary chairman of the House Ways and Means subcommittee investigating tax scandals, time and again pounded vigorously with his gavel and demanded that Maloney stop talking. The attorney just as heatedly refused to stop.

At the conclusion of the hearing a subpoena was issued for Grunewald's reappearance Feb. 13 and the subcommittee adjourned without further action. Keogh later told reporters that no action would be taken until the next full meeting of the subcommittee, only three members of which were present Friday. During the course of the open session 12 specific questions were addressed to the witness. He answered only one, saying he refused to answer the others on advice of counsel.

Keogh did not indicate when the full meeting would take place nor what recommendations the three members would make to the full group. He said he did not know whether the three would recommend the witness be cited for contempt of Congress.

The subcommittee has for the past three weeks wanted to question Grunewald on an alleged $500,000 income tax shakedown. His name has been mentioned in previous testimony as having been either a friend or business associate of persons implicated in the alleged extortion scheme.

Grunewald was asked about such matters as the country of his birth; his age; whether he ever made financial loans to persons in the government; whether he had advised a witness before the subcommittee not to tell about Grunewald's dealings with the witness; and whether he had been admitted to practice before the treasury department.

He was also asked why he had not produced books and documents subpoenaed at a session Thursday in which the witness had not been sworn in or asked any questions. The only question he answered was that concerning his age. He explained he had previously told the subcommittee he was 59 years old.

The actual questioning of Grunewald then began with Adrian W. DeWind, chief counsel for the subcommittee, asking him for his business address. The witness said he declined to answer on advice of counsel.

"He declines to answer for reasons which I have not been able to state," interjected Maloney.

The attorney then handed a prepared statement to his client and suggested he read it to the subcommittee.

After further debate Grunewald began reading haltingly, from the statement. He read in a low gravelly voice that contained a hint of an accent.

Vet Hero Plans Big Blood Rally

Capt. Raymond Harvey, winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor for valor in Korea, will confer with Red Cross, military and theater executives at the Ansley Saturday in an effort to set up a giant blood rally and parade here in January, as part of a national campaign to boost blood donations for military use.

"The nation is unaware of the critical shortage of blood," said Captain Harvey, who was saved by 12 pints of blood plasma after being wounded in Korea. "We must stimulate a continuing program."

Captain Harvey said he hoped the rally will take the form of a giant show in an Atlanta theater, at which time the new movie about the infantry, "Fixed Bayonets" would be shown.

He also said he hoped the rally will take the form of a giant show in an Atlanta theater, at which time the new movie about the infantry, "Fixed Bayonets" would be shown.

British Kill 5 Egyptians, Report Says

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 21—(UP)—British troops were reported Friday to have shot and killed five of a band of eight Egyptians surprised Thursday in the act of attempting sabotage at the Suez water filtration plant.

A British spokesman said the five were cut down by gunfire as they attempted to escape by diving into the nearby Sweetwater Canal. The other three were captured.

Lt. Gen. Sir George Erskine, British commander in the Suez Canal Zone, ordered a sunset-to-sunrise curfew in disturbed areas of the Canal Zone town of Ismailia. He said the curfew was being imposed "in view of the deterioration of law and order" in Ismailia, which has been a trouble spot since Egyptian abrogation of its 1936 treaty with Britain.

Erskine's order will not apply to Egyptian troops or police or to employees of the Suez Canal Zone Company.

Guys, Dolls Get Together for Keen Contest

By JEAN ROONEY

Atlanta guys recognize a real doll when they see her. But they're not ones for escorting pretty babies around.

At a doll contest Friday sponsored by the Atlanta public library young Atlanta men showed up in numbers. For admittance, they had to bring a doll. But to make certain no "sissy" stigma was attached to their presence, they carefully selected certain type dolls to accompany them.

WANTS A "MAN'S" DOLL

Take Jimmy McMillan, for instance, prize-winner for the "oldest doll." No lace-trimmed baby, or fancy-dressed lady for Jim, age 11 and a sixth grader at Highland. He took the prize with a 175-year-old doll, brought to him from Mexico.

One contest where the elaborately-dressed "babes" didn't count and shiny-new $50 dolls weren't wanted, smudgy, earless, cracked, well-worn "girlies" took all prizes.

A battered blue Jean dollie that Linda James made two years ago was judged "best hand-made." Linda, 11, is in the seventh grade of Gordon School.

STORE-BOUGHTS OUT

The "best-dressed" was taken by a Dutch doll in a simple outfit, every stitch sewn by Marianne Matthews, in the seventh grade of Smilie School. Store-bought clothing was "out," explained Miss Alice Rhea, library official.

A crisis almost arose over which doll came from the "fartherest." Library researchers went into a huddle, consulted atlases and announced that a Chinese "lady," traveling over 8,000 miles to owner Betty Gates was winner. Betty is a fifth grader in Spring Street School.

A diminutive miss from Italy turned out "smallest," measuring a fraction of an inch. "Mama" is "Teddy" Ann Healy, 8, third grader at Lena Cox School. A giantess, all of three feet, was crowned "tallest," entered by Dorris Dennis, 11, of Smilie School.

Author of the best story about a "real doll" was Joyce Nealy, fifth grade, Lakewood School.

Mrs. Brown is the former Miss Grace Elizabeth Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Adams of Hartwell. Mr. Brown, son of Mrs. McLester Brown and the late Mr. Brown of Atlanta, is employed by International Business Machines. The bride was a Delta Air Lines stewardess before her marriage. The couple is living at 1178 Piedmont Ave.

Match Box Favors Ignite Gay Spirit at Cotillion

The Capital City Country Club, gay with brilliantly lighted Christmas trees, evergreens and red satin bows, was the scene of the Girls Cotillion Club's annual Christmas dinner-dance Friday evening, with Miss Joan Smith, the newly elected president, serving as official hostess.

A sprinkling of out-of-town visitors added interest to the occasion which attracted 150 guests. Among the number were Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Latimer of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., who are guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. Joseph Winship; Miss Frances Pope of Columbus, Miss., who is the guest of Miss Fritz Yundt; Miss Corneille Rylander of Americus, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson, Miss Betty Tom Souter, Miss Alice Creighton and Cruze Patton.

Gathering for dinner at 8 p. m., guests were seated at small tables centered with miniature Christmas trees of cardboard and transparent plastic, many of which were made by the club president, Miss Smith. Favors were match books imprinted with the Cotillion Club name.

Miss Smith, wearing a strapless gown of emerald green faille and a spray of white orchids, was assisted by the other officers, Miss Alice Mitchell, Miss Ann Weyman and Miss Fritz Yundt. Miss Mitchell chose a strapless model of red nylon net with a sheaf of red flowers cascading down one side, and Miss Weyman wore a short formal of white chiffon encrusted with turquoise beads. Miss Yundt's bouffant and strapless gown of white net featured puffs of net caught to the close-fitting bodice.

WANTED: A GIRL

On Christmas Day my husband has a jolly time beneath the tree. He shoots the guns and runs the trains. And entertains my son and me.

We both sit back and let him play. And he is glad we have a boy. Because it gives him good excuse. To try out each and every toy.

But I am not so fortunate. There are no dolls beneath our tree. And so I guess I need a girl. On Christmas Day to play with ME!

Atlanta Symphony Goes Serenading

By ANNIE LOU HARDY

Though it was so bitterly cold they had to grease their lips to keep their instruments from freezing to them, members of the brass section of the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra went serenading Wednesday evening.

Under the direction of their leader, John Iuele, they played Christmas carols first at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Woodruff on Habersham Rd. and then at the Clifford Ragsdale home on the same street. Mr. Woodruff is past president of the Symphony Guild, and Mrs. Ragsdale is the president of the Women's Committee of the Guild.

The musicians ended the evening by serenading at the Tuxedo Road home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jagels. (Mr. Jagels is president of the Symphony Guild.) It so happened that the Jagels' daughters, Mrs. Lester Hardwick and Mrs. Homer Starr, were visiting their parents, and with their help, Mrs. Jagels, who seems equal to any occasion, soon whipped up a bowl of eggnog and served it with fruit cake—to the serenaders.

With the members of the brass section was the orchestra director, Henry Sopkin. "I wouldn't have missed the fun for anything," said Mr. Sopkin.

Yacht Club Gives Trophies Is President At 2nd Dance

Landlubbers were distinctly out of place when the Atlanta Yacht Club entertained at its second annual dinner-dance Friday evening at the Officers' Club at the Naval Air Station. The nautical motif was in evidence everywhere.

Serving as official hosts were the club officers, Commodore E. O. Smithfield, Vice Commodore Guy W. Gupion, and Rear Commodore William W. Timmis, who were assisted in entertaining the 400 guests by their wives.

A feature of the occasion was the awarding of trophies to winners in the 1951 sailing season, the presentations being made by Rear Commodore Timmis. The club is divided into four class fleets, and the winners in each were as follows: Snipe Fleet, William E. Hardy; Y-Flyer Fleet, Frank Brady; Thistle Fleet, N. A. Sinclair; Penguin Fleet, Shepherd Smith, first prize, with additional prizes going to Randolph Whitfield, T. Clinton Huguley Jr., Elfred Bartoo and Redfern Hollis.

The special trophy offered by Rich's, Inc., to the novice skipper showing the greatest improvement during the season was awarded to William E. Hardy. A special award also went to Norman Kohn for his work in helping to found the American Y-Flyer Association.

MARY HAWORTH

Wife Is Desolate at Flight Of Husband to Other Woman

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I wonder if you can say anything to help an old woman who is almost desperate. I am past 50 and my husband Tom has left me for another woman. Not to marry her, as she is married—but it was either her or me.

I don't think anyone knows of their secret meetings, except me; and when I recently heard of it and questioned Tom he didn't deny anything. He left soon after, and took a position in another town. Now I am alone except for a grandchild who stays here and goes to school, and I am heartbroken. I cannot confide in anyone, because of the disgrace it would bring to our good name, and the shame it would cause our children, who love and respect their father.

Tom allows me barely enough to live on; and as I've never done anything but keep house, I don't know how to help myself. But loneliness and heartache are the biggest problem. The days are so long and dreary and nights almost unbearable. I think at times I am going crazy. I believe if I could get away from here, and take up a job of any kind, I might carry on without breaking down. At present, prayer is all that keeps me going in a normal sane way. Please answer soon.—P. L.

DEAR P. L.: Since you find yourself utterly desolate, after a long experience in wifehood and motherhood, it is well to examine yourself for the cause. By and large, one's life-situation in late middle age is the inevitable harvest of one's habitual thinking and social attitudes.

The dolorous tenor of your recital shows why Tom felt driven from home—in search of more life. I don't say he was justified in bolting; but obviously he felt driven out—as a man might quit a stagnant atmosphere in gasping hunger for invigorating air.

Your negative temperament is disclosed in your sorrowing reference to yourself as "an old woman"—when you are merely fiftyish, and the fact that you are isolated since Tom left—without a confidante, and with nobody (not even the children) aware of your deserted status. It isn't wholesome to make a deep dark secret of your plight. Furthermore, you're not quite honest about your reasons for silence. You hurled an ultimatum at Tom, and he struck back by leaving you—a defeat you hate to admit. But why not admit it? "Honest confession is good for the soul"—and humility is a disarming trait.

You need to work outside the home, to get in touch with humanity and get your mind off self. Also you need to discuss your heartache with an appropriate counselor. Finally, you need to be partially self-supporting, which means you need job-hunting advice. Thus I advise you to call on the Family Service Society (or similar agency) in your town, which provides rehabilitation help along these lines.—M. H.

Cotton Futures
Close Lower

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Cotton futures moved over a fairly wide range Friday, with prices sensitive to small orders on the buy and sell side. The market displayed rallying tendencies at times on trade buying and short covering, but the trend was generally lower on hedging and profit taking of a year-end nature.

It was reported that the New York Quartermaster Corps has issued invitations to bid on 18,856 bales of cotton for Far East destination.

A private crop survey indicated that the weather has been less favorable recently in the Eastern and Central belts for the harvest of late cotton, with the grades lowered.

Futures closed $1.40 to $1.80 a bale lower than the previous close.

Moses' Law Rediscovered

backsliding, continuous breaking of God's laws be overlooked, and with no retribution exacted? True, the Lord God had always been quick to forgive the sinner. But all indications were that He was wrathful at Judah "because of all the provocations that Manasseh had provoked Him withal." And Jehovah had said, so Isaiah had reported: "I will remove Judah also out of My sight, as I have removed Israel."

The virtue of Josiah was not enough to fend off punishment for his people, and new prophets arose to make that fact clear. There was Zephaniah who pronounced doom upon all wicked nations, doom at the hands of the barbarous Scythian people who had had no benefits and promises such as the enlightenment the Lord had given to the favored people. Behold, the Scythians in their terrible chariots of wheeled knives were coming closer to Jerusalem! Thus, the prophet, Zephanian, in that ominous time, about 630 B. C., began to call upon the people to "change their minds," to "repent."

FALL OF NINEVEH

And Nahum, another prophet, added his voice to Zephaniah's impassioned orations. Nahum drew a marrow-curdling picture of the approaching downfall of the highly civilized city of Nineveh. He foresaw it taken by the Baby-

Soon, a prophet greater than either Zephaniah or Nahum was to come forth and stand by his people and Jerusalem in their worst despair and desolation. This was Jeremiah, the great one, who served selflessly and valiantly. But Jeremiah's 40 years of labor for the Lord came mainly after the days of Josiah. The king's earnest efforts met only with heartiest approval from the young prophet, though he was still only a fledgling priest of a village some three miles northeast of Jerusalem.

For most of his reign, King Josiah ruled in peace, but finally he took up arms against the invading troops of Pharaoh Necho of Egypt. These invaders were on their way northward to join forces with baited Assyria. When Josiah was killed in the famous battle of Megiddo, he was 39 years old.

Thus died the last king of Judah who merited the name of a good and true man. In his prophecies Jeremiah lamented for him, and "the bill of Megiddo" he
